Indians Writing in English

Sarojini Naidu

Sarojini Naidu was born in Hyderabad, to a gifted and progressive parents. They apart from their interest in language, music, poetry and science, were also deeply spiritual.

Sarojini Naidu wrote her first poem at the age of eleven and never looked back. She went to England for higher classes and Arthur Symonds, who guided her writing. She later became a Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature and many Universities conferred the degree of Doctor on her. She returned from London in 1898 and married Govindarajulu Naidu.

Between 1905 and 1917, she published her volumes of poetry - The Golden Threshold (1905), The Bird of Time (1912) and The Broken wing (1917).

Her meeting with Mahatma Gandhi in 1914, gave a new direction to her life. Since then she became totally involved in the struggle for India's Independence. She travelled all over India. She went to England for the Round Table Conference, to Africa for the Kenya-India Congress and to America and Canada as unofficial ambassador. She participated actively in Gandhi ji's Salt Satyagraha. After the achievement of Independence, she was appointed the first Indian Governor of Uttar Pradesh.

Unit - I

Sarajini Naidu - Indians Weavers.

The Pandah Nashin

Indians Weavers.

Indians Weavers by Sarajini Naidu is a short poem consisting of three stanzas having four lines each. The poet talks about three types of dresses that the Indians Weavers weave at three particular times of the day. Metaphorically each time and the dress weaved in that time symbolises a particular stage of life.

The poem has the rhyme scheme A A B B. The poet uses a number of literary devices to express her ideas like simile, imagery, metaphor etc. The poem consists of a discussion between the poet and the weavers; the poet asks the weavers and the latter reply.

Ques Write a critical appreciation of Sarojini Naidu's poem.

Ans Introduction: Sarojini Naidu has an important place in the galaxy of Indo-England poetry. She is called the singing bird of India. Her poetry besides its lyrical wealth is purely Indian in character. Her themes are Indian, thoughts are Indian, melody is of India. Only the language is that of England. Indian customs and traditions, Festivals and Celebrations, men and women, myth and legends, markets and bazars, fairs and feasts, fauna and flora, landscape and skyscape are presented in her poetry. To a great extent her poetry is a mirror to India.

Simplicity and music → 'The Indian Weavers' is a very short poem of Sarojini Naidu. It has only twelve lines which are divided into three stanzas of four lines each. This small beautiful lyrics was printed in the 'Folk Songs' Section of the Golden Threshold. In each stanza a question is asked in the first two lines. Weaving is one of the most important of the folk vocation in India, and the weavers are important folk characters. The poetess has skillfully retained the simplicity and lilting music of a folk song, even though the dyes has a symbolic significance and a rich texture having layers within layers of meaning.

Symbolic representation: → The poem is rich in symbolic representation. It is written in the question and answer form, each set in a particular time and occasion. It deals with three main events of man's life on earth. The Indian weavers are the Fates of Greek Mythology weaving the web of life, or the Indian Trinity - Brahma, Vishnu and Mahesh, the lords of man's destiny, those who create, and regenerate through Death itself. Their process of creation is an endless one like the weaving of the weavers from morning till night.
Bright and beautiful cloths which they are weaving at dawn is the dress of a newly born child. They have blue colour. This colour is of the wing of a kingfisher. The dawn is the beginning of life and blue colour symbolises the depth and colour of the ocean out of which emerge the white swan and the white lotus in the Hindu creation myths. The new born child is the creative joy of Brahma, the supreme god.

At night the weavers are weaving the bright cloths. They have multicolours. These purple and green cloths are magnificent in colours and they appear like the feathers of peacock. This dress is for a queen. It symbolises of fertility and growth. They are marriage veils. The glory, the mystery, the joy of life, are all stressed as the expression of the joy of Vishnu in 'creative mood'. Night symbolise Vishnu's Yoga-Nidra, rising out of which he forces chaos into order.

In the cold moon-light the weavers are weaving the cloths for the funeral shroud of a dead man. The chill of the moonlight night is symbolic of death. Death means re-union with eternal and the possibility of regenerations.

Poetic qualities: The Indian weavers is a very short lyric and it represents the three stage the life of a man. Sarojini Naidu has presented this lyric in the series of questions and answers, the simplicity of the questions and answers is worth praising. Three times break of day, setting of sun or the evening time and mid cold and chilly night symbolize three stage of human life. They are birth, marriage and death. Thus in the lyric the poetess has traced human life through the three most important stage.

Ques. 'Sarojini Naidu is called the Nightingale of India'. Discuss this with reference to her poem 'Indian Weavers'.

To what extent does Sarojini Naidu's poetry reflect the typical Indian Society's sensibility?

Ans. Introduction! → Sarojini Naidu is a great poetess of Indian writing in English literature. She is called the 'Nightingale of India' for her lyrical quality in her poetry. Her poetry 'Beside its lyrical wealth is purely Indian in character.' Her themes are Indian thoughts are Indian and melody is also of India. Only the language is that of England. Indian customs and traditions, festivals and celebrations, men and women, myths and legends, markets and bazzars, fair and feasts, fauna and flora, landscape and skyscape are presents in her poetry. To a great extent, her poetry is a mirror to India.

Date: / /

Religious Theme:→ Sarojini Naidu is a great & poetess of India devoted of Lord Krishna. Many of her beautiful pieces of lyrics are devoted to Radha and Krishna. In her lyric 'The song of Radha - the Milkmaid' she says -

But my heart was so full of your beauty,
Beloved, they loved as I cried without knowing Govinda! Govinda! Govinda! Govinda!
She becomes the English Meera Bai when she sings.

My heart be your tent and your pillow
of rest,
and a place of repose for your feet!

Romanticism:→ Sarojini Naidu represents to Indian Elizabeth, Browning John Keats or John Donne in respects of love lyrics. The poetess is the supreme poet of love. Love is her major theme. About one third of the total output of her poetry is about love. She deals with both the aspects of love - union and separation in its various moods of despair, frustration, sorrow, hope, expectation, ecstasy, challenge. She not only powerfully depicts various moods and states of love but also embodies various love situations - separations, Jealousy and suspicion. Love is seen in both violent and delicate aspects.

My passion shall burn as the flame of salvation

The flower of my love shall become the ripe fruit of Devotion.

(The Temple: A pilgrimage of love)

Her lyrical Genius! → Sarojini Naidu has a wealth of lyrics. She is called the singing bird or Nightingale of India. Her themes are girlish, but her lyricism is of the first order. Her mastery over verse - forms enabled her achieve flawless lyrics. She, like Shelley and Keats, has essential quality of lyricism. Her poetic diction depends more on the melodic phrase than on verbal adhesion and for this she clearly follows the Sanskrit example of Samasa (Synthesis). Her similes and metaphors are drawn from the common scenes and sight of nature.

and are vivid and graphic. Image like that of the moon being a 'Cast-mark' on the azure brow of heaven are highly original and fresh, and sparkle in the manner of Shelley, as in 'Palm-leaf bearers'. In her famous lyric 'Indian Weavers', she has skilfully woven the theme of life and death. Her method of questionnaire is most charming.

Weavers, weaving at break of day,
Blue as the wing of a halcyon wild,
We weave the robes of a new-born child.

Synthesis of Hindu - Muslim Culture: Sarojini Naidu is a woman of International culture. She does not believe in narrow caste and creed philosophy. She is fascinated by Indian diversity in religion and culture. Her poems are coloured with the spirits of India two epics - The Ramayana and the Mahabharata and the Puranic myths and legends of Radha and Krishna. She describes Hindu festivals, marriage rites, temples and images of gods and goddesses. But she was also deeply interested in other religions too. Her feelings are also united with Buddhism and Islamic beliefs.

Her * Childhood passed in Hyderabad, which had a way of life, art and culture, evolved both by Hindus and Muslim through centuries. Thus her native town represented the synthesis which she maintained in her poetry.

Conclusion: Sarojini Naidu represents India in her poetry. She is a great philosopher also. Her poem 'Indian Weavers' is the great example of her philosophical thoughts. In her short lyric 'Indian Weavers' she deals with the life and death circle. The three stage of life - birth, marriage and death have been very nicely written with the help of symbols. The day break is the birth of a child, the charming night stands for the marriage while the cold moonlight is the symbols of death. The weavers weave gay cloths for a new born child, multi coloured cloths for the bride and white cloths for the new the funeral shroud of a deadman. The weavers reply to the poetess indicating the three stage in the following lines -

Blue as the wing of a halcyon wild,
We weave the robes of a new-born child

Like the plumes of a peacock, purple and green
We weave the marriage-veils of a queen

White as a feather, and white as a cloud
We weave a dead man's funeral shroud.
